Sentence Structure

Finnish follows the pattern of Subject-Verb-Object

I drink water.

Minä juon vettää.

S+V+O

He likes you.

Hän pitää sinusta.

S+V+O

Important!

English doesn't use the passive form as much as Finnish so this can take time to learn.

This also makes passive sentences difficult to translate often.

You can also come across with passive sentences, where you don't know the subject (aka the person who is completing the action):

Metsässä leikitään.

Object + Passive Verb

Talvisin harjoitellaan.

Adverbial + Passive Verb

Asking questions:

Sinä leikit. > Leikitkö sinä?

S+V > V+S

Hän on kaupassa. > Onko hän kaupassa?

S+V+O > V+S+O

Kuinka vanha sinä olet?

Q+O+S+V

Sentence Negation

The negative verb “no” conjugates in personas. E.g. [juoda = to drink]

(Minä) en juo.

(Sinä) et juo

Hän ei juo.

Me emme juo.

Te ette juo.

He eivät juo.

The negative verb always comes in front of the main verb.

Nyt sataa. > Nyt ei sada. It's raining now. / It's not raining now.

Olen ostoksilla. > En ole ostoksilla. I'm shopping. / I'm not shopping.

Subordinating conjunction in sentences

The subordinating conjunction words in Finnish are...
joka, mikä, että, kun, koska

Using these words allows you to “build up” the sentences you use, and make the language flow more naturally.

Aikuisena olen viisas. Silloin tiedän paljonko kello on.
> Aikuisena olen viisas, koska tiedän paljonko kello on.
(eng. As an adult I'm wise because I know what time is it.)

Pidän Suomen kielestä. Se on Suomen virallinen kieli.
> Pidän Suomen kielestä, joka on Suomen virallinen kieli.
(eng. I like Finnish which is the official language of Finland.)

You can add more subordinating conjunctions, but it's recommended to stay at two at maximum, e.g.
Hän tietää ruuan olevan niin hyvää, että hän hymyilee, koska hän maistoi sitä jo.
(eng. He knows the food to be so good that he smiles because he already tasted it.)
